KIND FATE KEEPS THIS OFFICER OUT OF DANGER

A kindly fate seems to watch over the destinies of Lieutenant Commander John C. Leonard, Executive Officer of the U. S. S. Lawton, now in port. Twice he has been kept off warships that went to their destruction shortly after he left them. Last night he was eager for details regarding the tragedy on board the gunboat Bennington at San Diego. Barely two months ago, Leonard was executive officer of the Bennington, but was ordered from her to the Lawton, after a year's service with the ill-fated gunboat. Less than two months after he left her, the Bennington was a crushed and twisted wreck, the steel walled tomb for nearly a third of her men.

The other occasion when Lieutenant Commander Leonard missed going out on a doomed ship, was many years ago when the old wooden sloop-of-war Vandalia went to destruction on the reef at Apia, Samoa, in the great hurricane of 1889. Before the Vandalia sailed for the Samoan station, Leonard tried his best to get aboard the ship for her South sea cruise, but was unable to get assigned to her, much to his disappointment. A short time afterward the timbers of the ship were scattered along the beach at Apia, many of the officers and crew were drowned and Leonard was congratulating himself on his narrow escape.

Lieutenant Commander Leonard confirmed the report that the boilers of the Bennington were in need of repairs, although he said that no greater pressure was used in the Bennington's boilers than was safe. The Concord, one of the Bennington's sister ships, is now laid up at Bremerton navy yard, her boilers being in bad condition.

TRENT AGAIN REFUSES

ments should pass through the hands of Mr. Sam Johnson before it reached the employees who had earned it, I felt sure that such a plan if followed would be in direct violation of the plain provisions of the law.

"Not wishing to have any trouble, or to cause any, I called on Chairman Geo. W. Smith of the Board of Supervisors just a few minutes before the meeting on Tuesday afternoon was scheduled to be held, and told him that if a blanket warrant should be drawn payable to any one individual for a whole department payroll, I felt that my responsibility as treasurer and my duty to my bondsmen would make it imperative upon me to refuse payment. I said to him that I had come to him in a friendly way as chairman of a body, a majority of which was politically hostile to me; and that if it should be insisted that a blanket warrant be drawn, I wanted the matter to be referred to the courts in a friendly manner, so that my responsibility in such a case could be judicially determined.

"Mr. Smith treated me very nicely indeed, and asked me to show him what points in the law I relied upon to sustain my position. I frankly and candidly presented my whole case to him, and he seemed—seemed, now mind you—to think that my points were well taken. I told him that if I wanted to 'do politics' I would not have come to him to discuss the question, but would simply have waited until one of the blanket warrants came to me; then refused payment, and fought the thing out in the courts.

"After the adjournment of the Tuesday afternoon meeting, Chairman Smith came to my office and said, 'Well, Trent, it is all off.' 'What the blanket warrant proposition?' I asked. 'Yes, I got them together before the meeting this afternoon and presented the situation fully, and it was dropped.' 'Then every man is to get an individual warrant?' I asked. 'Yes,' said the chairman of the Oahu County Board of Supervisors, and I handed him a check on Bishop & Co. for county warrant No. 1, for $50, for his salary as supervisor for the month of July, and he went out in apparently a very good humor, and I was happy to feel that a most undesirable situation that had seemed to threaten had been fortunately averted.

"You can imagine that I was very much surprised this morning when blanket warrant No. 63 was presented at my counter, ordering me to pay to Mr. Samuel Johnson the whole sum of the earnings of forty-four people who had worked hard for the small wages they receive, and who, I thought, were entitled under the law to receive direct from the county treasury the whole sum of their earnings, without any intermediary paymaster, or discounts, or holdouts of any nature whatsoever.

"I turned again to Sec. 75 of the County Act, which says, 'The Auditor shall issue warrants on the County Treasurer in favor of persons entitled thereto,' etc. I wondered if Mr. Sam Johnson could really be entitled to the earnings of forty-four different men. I asked Mr. Johnson to wait a little while until I could communicate with the chairman of the Board of Supervisors on the subject. Then as quickly as it could be done, a letter was dictated and typed, and then handed to Chairman Smith in his office by my young lady stenographer. He read the letter, and asked her to say to me that he would be down to see me in a few minutes. The letter was as follows:

"Office of Treasurer, County of Oahu, Territory of Hawaii.
'Honolulu, August 2, 1905.
'Mr. George W. Smith, Chairman Board of Supervisors, County of Oahu.
'Dear Sir: There has just been presented to me warrant No. 63 for $1,446.44 payable out of 'Garbage Department' to Samuel Johnson.

"This seems to be intended to cover the pay of some forty men, more or less, working in the Garbage Department. Under the law providing for the payment of persons having claims against the county I do not feel that I have authority to pay this total sum to Mr. Johnson, and I must therefore respectfully decline to honor this warrant in its present shape.

"I am, sir,

"Your obedient servant,
'RICHARD H. TRENT,
'County Treasurer.'

"Chairman Smith failed to come to see me, and the next I heard of the matter, officially was when Mr. Johnson appeared again about three or half past three this afternoon with the same warrant, but with additional endorsements on it over the signatures of the chairman and the clerk of the board, reciting that the Board of Supervisors ordered the whole sum paid to Mr. Johnson. The Auditor also put his name on again, approving this second order for the payment. I again respectfully declined to pay. Then Mr. Johnson and I, as a mark of our personal esteem for one another, went down to the Honolulu Drug Store and had a 'drink' together.

"A little later County Attorney Dou-thitt appeared on the scene with the unhappy warrant, and asked my reasons for refusing payment. He had in his hand the written opinion which he had rendered to the Board of Supervisors on the matter, which he kindly allowed me to read. I saw that he had not touched the real point involved, and when I presented my side of the case to him he acknowledged that he had misunderstood the proposition when he wrote the opinion.

"I said a while ago that I was surprised when a blanket warrant was presented to me this morning. I was more than surprised. Remembering the conversation I had had with Chairman Smith yesterday, I was hurt at the unexpected denouement. I went up to a Jitor Bicknell's office and asked him who had authorized him to issue the blanket warrant. He said the Board of Supervisors had authorized it. I told him I had received no notice of such authorization on the part of the board. Then he said he had received his orders from a certain member (or members, I am not certain which). He declined to divulge names."

MR. SMITH'S STATEMENT.

Chairman Smith, having been shown the statement of the Treasurer, admitted that the facts were generally as there related. Indeed, when orally informed previously of Mr. Trent's version of the proceedings, Mr. Smith gave an account of them which was so nearly the same that it would involve needless repetition to publish both stories in full. As to what Mr. Trent quotes him as saying, however, Mr. Smith states that what he did say was this: "Well, Mr. Trent, I think the blanket warrant will not be considered. We talked it over before the meeting and discussed the matter, and decided to issue warrants to individuals."

Mr. Smith went on to say to the reporter: "In making this statement to Mr. Trent I stated what was then considered to be the plan. 'At the evening meeting all salaries for employees that are paid by the month were passed for individuals. When it came to long payrolls of laborers, employed by the day, the committee having charge of the matter deemed it best to pass the full amount and allow the superintendent to pay them off. The Treasurer has refused to pay this warrant and the men are without their money.

"It is not a question of 'politics' and has not so been considered by any member of the Board. The idea has been to make payments for labor in the most expeditious manner possible.

"Other portions of the County Act, not quoted by Mr. Trent, lead the Supervisors to think that they are in the right and that, after authorizing payment of an approved claim, where the money has been appropriated, as in this case, the Treasurer has no option but to pay."

JOHNSON'S VIEWS.

Sam Johnson seen at the Roads Bureau before he went to the meeting of the Board of Supervisors, spoke as follows of the matter in dispute:

"I don't care what system they adopt so long as the men are paid. Here are a great many men living from hand to mouth, some getting $10, some $20, some $15, according to the days they worked.

"They have not got any pay for more than a month. The Chinese poimen threaten to stop their credit. Their pay is held back owing to some technical difference between the Treasurer and the Supervisors, the Treasurer claiming that each of 400 or 500 men, on the roads and garbage work, should get an individual warrant.

"How is he going to know he is giving the warrant to the right man, unless I stand by him to identify every man, thus detaining me from my duties for hours while the warrants are being issued?

"That system was tried some time ago when the warrants were discounted, and the banks refused to cash the warrants until the men were identified. The result was that I had to stand by the cashier's wicket all the time the warrants were being cashed.

"Under the Territory's system, the payroll of this bureau was approved by the Superintendent of Public Works and the Chief Clerk, and then the Auditor issued his warrant to me and on that I paid each man, he signing the payroll on getting his money."

DANCE AT THE HAWAIIAN.

Over three hundred people enjoyed the hospitality of the Hawaiian Hotel last night at a dance which was given in honor of the officers and passengers on the naval transport Solace and Lawton.

The music was furnished by a Hawaiian quintet and the lanais were crowded with dancers all the evening, many local people taking the opportunity to enjoy themselves, meet old friends returning on the vessels, and make new ones. The dance was so thoroughly enjoyed, that by special request of those present last evening, Manager Fred Church will give a dance tonight at the Hawaiian and also another on Saturday evening in honor of the transport people, and it is expected that there will be even more present at these dances than attended last night's pleasant affair.
